NARRATIVE:

The Chico Police Department experienced minimal problems associated with St. Patrick's Day. With Chico State University, Butte Community College, and CUSD aligning their spring break times during this week, the police department has seen a reduction of crime and public safety problems over the course of the last several years.

As such, the department added only minimal staffing to deal with the St. Patrick's Day Special Event. The calls for service associated with the event centered around the downtown and south campus areas. Several party complaints and drunk in public calls came in but the call volume was not out of the ordinary for a Thursday night. Most parties encountered were small and under control. Crowds at the local bars were also manageable.

There was one arrest for drunk in public in the downtown area, several citations for open container and one driving under the influence arrest associated with this special event.
